Contents

	Acknowledgements	ix
1	Introduction: the law of the extempore	1
2	The rise and reform of the New York City cabaret laws	15
3	Deconstructive legal improvisation The aporia of singularity 38 The aporia of originality 43 The aporia of performative immediacy 49 The aporia of the extempore 54	35
4	The 'wildness' of jazz improvisation 'Wild' origins 56 Bebop's sonic and social wildness 58 Improvisation, wildness, invention 66	56
5	Demystifying improvisation Improvisation and the 'jazz form' 72 Tradition of improvisation 79 Collective individuality 83	71
6	The structure–freedom paradox in law The freedom of precedent 94 The structure of discretion 100 The NYC 'police cards' revisited 105	91
7	Justice as improvisation The necessity of improvisation's impossibility 112 Ensemble improvisations: democracy and community 116	110

The ethical force of improvisation 122 Improvisation as resistant critique 125 Improvisioning 130

Notes	136
Bibliography	161
Index	185