

ore instructive, than to o register from time to y.
Langton, June 28, 1758

Contents

| | | |
|------------|--|-----|
| Preface | ix | |
| CHAPTER 1 | Rhythms of Hope and Disappointment | I |
| CHAPTER 2 | Doctrine in a Vacuum | 8 |
| CHAPTER 3 | Legal Writing | 25 |
| CHAPTER 4 | What's an Opinion For? | 35 |
| CHAPTER 5 | Law Teachers' Writing | 43 |
| CHAPTER 6 | "Law and Literature": No Manifesto | 52 |
| CHAPTER 7 | Teaching Law and Literature | 73 |
| CHAPTER 8 | Meaning in the Humanities and the Law | 89 |
| CHAPTER 9 | How Should We Talk about Corporations? | III |
| CHAPTER 10 | Talking about Religion in the Language of the Law | 124 |
| CHAPTER 11 | Reading, Hope, and Planned Parenthood v. Casey | 151 |
| CHAPTER 12 | Meaning in the Life of the Lawyer | 174 |
| Index | 185 | |