

Crossing borders: law, language, and literature

Table of Contents

Introduction Jeanne Gaakeer and François Ost	5
Part I Interrelations of law, language, and literature
Law and Literature: An analysis of Sophocle's Antigone and Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice Marcelo Campos Galuppo	8
Utopian capabilities, on critical legal thinking and Cervantes' Don Quixote Jörn Reinhard	21
Kafka, kavka, K.: the case of a hyphenated identity Vera Karam de Chueiri	29
Law and essays (crônicas): the enchanting soul of the streets Mônica Sette Lopes	39
Comprehending contraries or doublethink? Law, literature, and the dangers of cognitive dissonance. Jeanne Gaakeer	60
On Law and Literature: dimensions and limits of a controversial relationship Marcelino Rodríguez Molinero	75
Thought and Art in Hispanic Tradition of Legal Literature: aesthetic keys for legal interpretation Héctor López Bello	82
Investigative Literature - Bertolt Brecht revisited Lorenz Schulz	103
Hellenism and Hebraism: legal traditions and the work of Cynthia Ozick James Gray	112

Part II New perspectives

Hyperliterature and Law, Unity of Text, Diversity of Readings Andrej Kristan	137
A Little Place Before the Law: Two Tales of One Metaphor Maria Aristodemou	146
Sade and Portalis at the foot of the scaffold, an example of jurisfiction François Ost	163
About the authors	176